the Queen has appointed Arthur Wilson to be high sheriff of Yorkshire, and proposes to besatow upon him the honor of knighthood, has aronsed strongly unfavorable criticism.

The members of the bar generally speak of it as an interference with the course of justice by attempting to create a projudice in behalf of one of the defendants in the Sir William Gordon-Cumming suit for slander. The appointment is said to have been made at the urgent personal request of the Prince of Wales, and in the face of the reluctance of Lord Salisbury, who wished to dofer the bestowal of honors upon Mr. Wilson until after the Baccarat seandal had been removed from the court. The Prince takes emphatically the side of the Wilsons, and isso pronounced in his autagonism to Cumming that none of the Frince's set dare associate with that nobleman, who has been notified that it would be well for him, pending the decision of his suit, to remain away from the Mariborough Club, at which the Prince of Wales is a frequent visitor. Friends of the Prince say that the action is not without justification, as will appear at the trial, and after securing lenient treatment from Cumming he has been rewarded with gross ingratitude in the requirement that he shall personally appear as a witness. Nevertheless the promotion of Mr. Wilson is being made effective use of by the partisans of Sir William as evidence that unfair means are reserted to in order to strengthen his opponents, and that for the first time during Victoria's reign the Crown has taken sides in a private suit at law between subjects.

tersburg tells of a new industry which is creating considerable development in Russia.

It is that of conversion. It appears that the Russian Government, not being willing to trust only to theological arguments and penal laws offers a reward to all Jews who will become Christians. The consequence is that a number of Jews, deprived by the severe enforcement of the decress against their race of the opportunity to make an honest living, have entered on the practice of being converted at regular intervals and receiving each time a government bounty of fifteen roubles. One Hebrew, named Schwartboskoff, has been at last detected, after seven different conversions in as many different localities.

It happened that the Russian priest, to whom he made known his desire for the seventh time for baptism and fifteen roubles had been recently transferred from Elizabeth-grad, where the convert had been baptized and rewarded only about two mouths before; consequently Schwartboskoffs will undergro no more conversions for the prerent as the police have him in hand.

A SENSATIONAL TRIAL.

A Lawyer Sued and a Woman Charged With Infidelity. WORCESTER, MASS., Mar. 26.-An important conspiracy case was concluded to-day after an eight days' trial in the Superior Court. Henry W. King, law partner of ex-Congressman W. W. Rice, was sued by Miss Miline Holman to secure $5,000 paid by her to King as counsel for Mrs. William E. Kendall, who claimed that Miss Holman had aleinated her husband's offe affections.

A private settlement was made by Miss Holman under threats and through consorracy, as she claimed. Later Miss Holman learned that Mrs. Kendall had previously different applications f from her husband on charges of adultery and cruel treatment. Kendall kept a hvery stable and drove for Miss Holman, and to avoid searcial and through fright and compulsion, she alleges that Lawyer King indused her to transfer to him the sum of $4.000 in cash and her note for $1.000. The case went to the jury this afternoon and after five hours' consultation they returned a scaled verdict, said to be in favor of the plaintiff. Kendall is a well-known trotting-horse owner and driver, and met his wife, formerly Miss Almena D. Lowe, a well-known Maron Springs (N. Y.) dressmaker, while on the circuit of New York county fairs in 1886. The trial developed the fact that Kendall had had a mistress, by whom he had a child, before he married Miss Love, and that their married life had been very unhappy. Miss Holman is a maiden lady, whose health was much impatred just previous to the settlement with King upon the discovery of a conspiracy on the part of her brother to have her murdered that he might inherit her property.
